Artistic Glory Illuminates History

In order to organize the historical archives of Taiwan art, My Home, My Art Museum: Biographies of Taiwanese Artists, a consecutive series that recounts the stories of various senior artists in visual arts in the 20th century, has been compiled and published since 1992. Accumulating recognition and acknowledgement for their achievement and analyzing their contributions to the development of art in our country, it is also a classical series of Taiwan art, a shortcut to understand the spirit and Taiwanese artists, and a good way for both students and nonspecialists to look into the world of creative art.

Art creation has important value for the country and society from which it crystallizes, and for the individuals who create or appreciate it. More than embellishing our environment and cleansing our minds, a fine work of art serves as an index of the cultural status of a country. Substantiating the groundwork of our cultural progress, the publication of these artist biographies consolidates the fine arts development in the Republic of China, turning it into a fecund cultural heritage.
